I appreciate the intuitive interface that lets me keep track of documents, design control elements, and change all within a single platform. We've used Greenlight Guru from day one of establishing our quality system, and being able to manage everything online has saved us from many headaches. The design control matrix in particular lets us note details about individual design control elements, link relevant documents, and manage risk, all within the same clean framework. The Greenlight Guru team is very responsive and is constantly working to improve the regulatory compliance and user experience of the platform, and it shows.

Ideal QMS software for Medical Device companies

Restructuring our old "paper-driven" quality management system to be fully compliant with ISO 13485:2016 seemed like a daunting task. The Greenlight Guru software and support team were very helpful and we discovered that many of our current practices and procedures could be adapted to fit into their QMS software without having to change everything we were already doing.

As an executive advisor to focused primarily on supporting early-stage medical device companies, I appreciate Greenlight Guru's designed in flexibility to implement relevant modules in stages rather than forcing a young company to adopt a full QMS all at once. As a 20+ year professional in the medical device development and commercialization space, I sincerely appreciate how Greenlight Guru's QMS solutions are created by experienced Med Device professional exclusively for the Med Device community. Before launching my own advisory firm, my prior history includes deep experience working within at least two world-class, triple-digit Billion USD market cap medical device and pharma companies and has provided me with an opportunity to see many different QMS software solutions. Without a doubt, Greenlight Guru holds its own against those options and is an outstanding options even for companies that large.
